PROJECTS

Online Social Network Based On spam Avoidance -

In last few years, online social networks (OSNs), such as Facebook, Twitter have experienced exponential growth in both profile registrations and social interactions. These networks allow people to share different information ranging from news, photos, videos, feelings, personal information or research activities. The review considered only social networking sites and excluded studies such as email spam detection. We propose a content-based approach to alter spam information to avoid the replication messages.
