Automatic LPG Gas Monitoring and Booking System Using Load Cell
(Surakshit Indhan, Behtar Jeevan)

We have proposed a new system which automatically books a cylinder when the gas is about to empty by sending a SMS by using GSM. In addition to that, a smoke sensor is used to detect gas leakage in the home. If any gas leakage is detected, automatically it starts beeping (Buzzer). GSM is one of the most cellular networks used in India. In our project, we have used a load cell to monitor the weight of the LPG gas regularly. The values are next fed to the microcontroller. If the gas level crosses below the threshold level, then a SMS will be sent to the gas agency automatically to book the new cylinder. Then a reply SMS will be sent to the customer about the booking status. At the same time, application software is developed in the gas agency to inform and record the booking.
